The community service of Project MMM commenced formally on April 12, 2025. First of all, I was nervous as I had little experience teaching children. But as the workshops developed I found the tasks easier than I had expected. The students were responsive and lively and especially lively in such activities as Zumba that I supported to organize with my colleagues.

Apart from educating them regarding fitness, we engaged them in filling their heads with thoughts about values and spirituality with the assistance of local pastors. I noticed children becoming more engaged, and more united with one another and with their community of faith.

This experience gave me the skills to learn the value of teamwork, responsibility, being adaptable. Punctuality, responsibility taking, and participation in a group helped differentiate me a lot. It turned out that nurturing relationships with the children was worthwhile because I was learning to communicate and become patient.

After all, I came to believe that Project MMM was an important and satisfying experience. With Project MMM support, it was possible for me to develop my educational skill and sense of purpose to influence the community.
